

LegalAuthority.com: How it got started

I

December 17, 2009

This press release informs the readers about the beginning of LegalAuthority.com and its goals. A. Harrison Barnes is the owner of this renowned legal recruiting firm. He has created it to help legal job seekers to get the most deserving jobs and to bring a positive change in their careers and lives.

Legal Authority legal job site is the result of the earnest efforts put in by a very experienced attorney, A. Harrison Barnes. He took his initial step in the legal recruiting field by creating BCG Search. The work was going well and the firm gradually received the popularity it required.

At this point, A. Harrison Barnes received the resume of one of his law students who was looking for a job. Despite being one of the best in his class, the student failed to get through a law job as the law school he graduated from was in the fourth-tier and not one of the best-known. This was hurting A. Harrison Barnes as he felt everyone, especially the talented and hardworking students, who had finished legal studies from a law school, deserved a chance to be an attorney. Despite having the feeling that even such a brilliant student could not be helped, he called him to his office, reviewed his resume and the cover letter and had them redone. The student then applied to numerous employers simultaneously. He soon got positive results and he received calls for many interviews. At the end of the day he got himself a good law job. This was a very satisfying moment for A. Harrison Barnes as he had directly helped his ex-student get the job.

The situation got worse for job seekers with the down-turn of the economy. The lay-off or termination rate rose to an unexpected level. Many of the attorneys A. Harrison Barnes had earlier placed with big firms lost their jobs and came to him for help. The CEO called them to his office and helped them in a similar way as he had helped the other law student. As the news of his success spread, more and more people came in for his help. This ultimately increased the pressure on the whole team of BCGSearch.

At such a juncture A. Harrison Barnes founded Legal Authority.com with the singular aim of supporting legal job aspirants with the process of job hunting and helping them to prepare their resumes and cover letters. It is the result of the dedication of the owner and the team members that today, Legal Authority.com ranks among the top-most legal recruitment firm in the United States. It has helped thousands of attorneys and law students to get the perfect job for their career. People have been very satisfied and they feel lucky to have used the best legal employment service provider in the country.

Legal Authority has done wonders to the legal careers of people who have been its client. The team members believe in continuing their successful work as long as possible. Legal Authority has accomplished its goals only due to the complete dedication of the entire team. Their motto of providing the best to their client has been achieved from the very day this legal service portal has stepped into the legal recruiting world. Legal Authority consists of 40 members who work day and night to get law jobs from almost all the legal employers in the country. They have A. Huge database which is updated regularly.

2

The proud owner knows that starting something good and positive is not easy and admits that even he faced a lot of troubles in creating the top-most legal service providing portal. He knew that his hard work would benefit thousands of unemployed men and women around the country and the launch of this law job hunting site facilitated just that. Today Legal Authority.com offers hundreds of legal openings to law school pass-outs. For more details, please contact: www.legalauthority.com.